About the show:

Aesop's Fables are a number of short moralistic stories credited to an ancient storyteller named Aesop. These stories, filled with personified animals, all showcase a particular character trait or moral judgment that can be a valuable lesson for the reader. Dating back some 2,600 years, Aesop's Fables have been celebrated throughout history and carefully studied by students across the globe!

Aesop was an African slave who lived in Ancient Greece from 620-560 BC. Little is known about his life, but his name appears with much frequency throughout the works of his contemporary playwrights and fellow writers, showing up in pieces by Aristophanes, Plato and more. He compiled fables from both his own imagination as well as Ancient texts. Throughout history, other writers dappled in the art of fable writing, but none left their mark as much as Aesop. Today virtually every bookstore and library contains at least one volume of Aesop's works filled with hundreds of fables credited to him.

Our production opens with Lenny and Mabel, two Elizabethan traveling actors who happen upon an audience on their travels and decide to perform an impromptu show of some of their favorite material - Aesop's Fables! While our set design reflects the feel of Ancient Greece (the birthplace of the fable), our characters are traveling performers from the 1600s--a time in England when Aesop was extremely popular. We chose this time period for the play for many reasons, mainly because of its colorful and entertaining qualities for a young audience. In the Bright Star Theatre production, we scoured through hundreds of fables in order to find ones that carry both a familiar quality as well as an accessible message to a young audience. Phrases that have long peppered our vernacular and characters that we have seen in so many cartoons growing up are found within the very pages of this ancient text. We hope that your young people will discover the magic of these stories and perhaps be inspired to pull this 2,600 year old book off the shelf and discover them for the first time.
Words to Know:

Theatre is a form of storytelling that has been entertaining people for thousands of years. Theatre has its own kind of language. Here are some terms that actors, directors, and other “theatre people” use all the time!

Audition: A hopeful actor will either read, sing or dance (or sometimes all three!) in order for the director to decide which actor she wants to cast in a particular role.

Director: The director reads the script, and tells the actors where they should go and what they should do. Each director has a different way of telling a story from every other director, and this means that each play will be unique from every other play!

Set: All of the scenery on the stage is part of what is called the “set.” It helps to paint a picture of where the story takes place, so it is easier for the audience to follow the play. For Aesop’s Fables, our actors use a backdrop, which is the colorful painted background.

Costumes: All of the clothes that are worn onstage by the actors are costumes. The hats, the wigs, the coats, and even the shows are all part of the costumes!

Props: Anything that an actor carries during the show is a prop. Can you remember any of the props used by the actors in this play?

Rehearsal: Once the cast of the play is set, everyone on the show needs to practice to get ready for the show. This can take weeks, and that gives time for the sets and costumes to be built, and for the actors to learn their lines.

Actors: These are the people that you see on stage. They each have a character to play, and they spend a long time rehearsing before they perform. They have to learn where they should walk, when they should talk, and how their characters should act. It’s a lot of work!

and of course -

Audience: Perhaps the most important element in the show! The audience consists of the people who come out to watch the play. You were our audience for Aesop’s Fables!

Seeing the Play:

Attending the theatre is very different than going to the movies or watching television. For one thing, the actors are real people who can hear and see everything that’s happening in the audience. It’s important to know a few rules before seeing a play:

- ★ Please be quiet and respectful during the performance so that those around you can hear what’s happening.
- ★ If something’s funny, it’s okay to laugh!
- ★ If you like the play, be sure to clap at the end.

Classroom Activities:

Create an Aesop’s Fables Newscast!
This activity incorporates creative thinking, writing, and performance!

1. Break students into small groups. Have each group create a segment of a newscast about Aesop’s Fables. The possibilities are endless and the more creative, the better the result! Ideas for segments could include: an interview with the people of the town in “The Boy Who Cried Wolf,” a cooking show with recipes for grapes, an follow-up story on the friendship between the Lion and the Mouse - even the weather and commercials could be tackled!

2. Discuss all the things that make a play possible. Have each group think about how costumes, props, and the set could help bring their news segments to life. If there’s time, try to create some of these props or costume pieces from everyday items!

3. Time for performance! Have each group perform their segment of the news. Before you begin the “newscast” have students warm up their voices with an Aesop’s Fables-themed tongue twister (actors do this all the time!) like: “Six short slow shepherds” or “Lions licking limes and lemons”

Remind the other students about being good audience members while they watch their friends onstage!

Fill In the Blanks!
Each one of Aesop’s Fables ends with a lesson or a moral - and many of those lessons have become familiar sayings that we still use today! Using the words below, fill in the blanks to complete some of Aesop’s best known sayings!

1. Beauty is only skin ________.
2. ________ of a feather flock together.
3. Don’t _____________ your chickens before they’ve hatched.
4. Look before you ____________.
5. Slow and steady wins the ____________.
6. ________ before you act.
7. ____________ often are deceiving.
8. Little friends may become ________ friends.
9. Things are not always what they __________.

Remind the other students about being good audience members while they watch their friends onstage!

Questions for Discussion:

1. What were your favorite moments in the play? Why were they your favorites?

2. What was your favorite lesson that you learned from the play? Why are these lessons so important and why are they included in the play?

3. Why do you think Aesop used animals to teach these lessons? Why have they remained so popular even after 2600 years?

4. If you were going to create a play about Aesop’s Fables what things would you do differently and what things would you keep the same?
Write your own review!

Your assignment is to write a review of Aesop’s Fables. If you were writing a review for a newspaper, here are some items that you would need to include:

★ Your reader may not have seen the performance. Start by placing your reader in the middle of the action by describing some of the high points.
★ Was there a scene or character that you especially liked? Write about what made that character or scene special to you.
★ Most reviews comment on the acting, the direction, the sets, the script, and the costumes. Choose at least three from the list to include in your review.
